Elementary (Grades 4-5)- School gardens can provide many benefits in the areas of nutrition, health, and behavior and can make lasting differences in the lives of children. Explain why your school should establish a school garden program. Be sure to elaborate on how having this garden can increase students' social and community skills and can help improve nutrition for students.

Middle School (Grades 6-8)- Food insecurity is a complex social issue that often impacts many minority communities. Identify a minority leader in Florida who is championing food insecurity. Explain who this person is, the exact nature of his/her work, and how it is helping to decrease food insecurity in minority communities.

High School (Grades 9-12)- A recent study examined trends in food insecurity from 2001 to 2016 and found that food insecurity rates for both Black and Hispanic households were at least twice that of non-Hispanic White households. One reason is the lack of access to proper nutrition in these communities. Discuss the impact of inequitable access to nutritious foods in minority communities in Florida and propose at least one solution on how to eliminate such disparities.
